

Reference Ranges (Reference Intervals) and Critical Values

Reference ranges and critical values are assessed regularly by qualified laboratory clinical and scientific practitioners to ensure that they remain current and appropriate to the test repertoire. The laboratory will update the details on the website as required and will notify service users of changes. There will be a regular review and update of service user contact details by the laboratory to facilitate the accurate and timely notification of value changes.